Join us for a presentation by University of Akron students Joshua Murphy and Stephanie Stanley. Based on this popular real-life thriller by Celtic specialist Miranda Aldhouse-Green (“An Iron Age CSI detective” - Discover).

From the publisher:

“ Over the past two centuries, peat cutters in the bogs of northern Europe have periodically unearthed the remains of prehistoric men, women and children so well preserved that they are often mistaken for victims of modern crime. In many cases their skin, hair, nails and marks of injury survive, betraying the violence that surrounded their deaths. Who were these unfortunate people, and why were they killed?

It is time for a new book about the bog bodies. The number of new bodies is growing. Lindow Man, the famous “Pete Marsh” discovered in Cheshire in the 1980s, has been joined by new finds from Ireland and elsewhere...Drawing on all the latest evidence and research...an engrossing detective story. ”

No registration necessary.

Free parking available in the High Street parking deck adjacent to Main Library.
